STELLAR YEAR LEADS TO ANOTHER NEW EXECUTIVE HIRE FOR OVATION

New York, May 10, 2006 - Ovation Travel Group, ranked among the top twenty corporate travel management providers in the United States, announced today the addition of Daniel Gogerty as Senior Vice President of Operations. This appointment is a reflection of Ovation's tremendous business success, having grown over $50 million in new business in 2005.

"With extensive experience in the travel industry, Dan brings finely tuned operational expertise to Ovation. He has a wide-ranging knowledge of the business which gives him a great understanding of our industry from the ground up," commented Paul Metselaar, Chairman and CEO. "We are excited to add Dan's skills and know-how to the team here at Ovation."

Daniel Gogerty joins Ovation as Senior Vice President of Operations, after more than 28 years in the travel industry. Prior to joining Ovation, Mr. Gogerty held senior level positions at Rosenbluth International, Maritz Travel Company, TQ3 and Carlson Wagonlit Travel in Client Solutions and Operations. During his career, Mr. Gogerty has managed multiple call centers, global service delivery, implementations, training, and new technology implementations in addition to integration responsibilities for Maritz Corporate Travel and Carlson Wagonlit. In his role with Ovation, Mr. Gogerty will be responsible for service delivery, customer satisfaction, process innovation, employee development and strategic growth.

"Ovation has seen exceptional growth during our first quarter of the year with an overall increase of 35%," commented Mr. Metselaar. "Daniel Gogerty is a great addition to our expanding executive team."

The addition of Daniel Gogerty to the Ovation team rounds out a series of executive hires in the past months. Evan Newman recently joined Ovation as Chief Information Officer. Evan brings with him 20 years of experience in the travel industry having held senior positions at Goldman Sachs and WorldTravel BTI. Marcia Amoye was recently brought on board as Senior Vice President of Client Solutions. Marcia was most recently with Carlson Wagonlit where she was responsible for strategic planning, customer retention and profitability for the some of the firm's key clients.
